

Bio

Being an exceptionally creative person and having been involved with music all her life, Allannah has developed into a gifted Artist/Performer.

Inspired by Pink, Ed Sheeran, Passenger, John Mayer, Bon Jovi and Tom Petty, Allannah is a Creative, Serious Songwriter, often writing about the many challenges young people face in life.

Allannah grew up with a very musical family, surrounded by guitarists, organists, vocalists, pianists, a DJ and a Sound Tech.

Allannah took piano and vocal lessons from an early age, before competing in local talent quests, where Allannah was a consistent winner.

Allannah went on to consolidate her skills at what must be one of New Zealand's top high school music departments, where her song writing skills really started to shine, becoming quite the storyteller.

High School performances with Mike Chunn, Jordan Luck, Jamie McDell and Looking For Alaska were a particular highlight and gave her a huge boost.

Allannah continues to build on these experiences and is developing an inspiring resume.

Discovered in 2015 by Uptown Studios' Alan Jansson - best known as co-writer/producer of OMC's How Bizarre - Allannah is collaborating with Alan on several recording projects and expects to be releasing her first single later this year.

When not working on her music, Allannah can be found tutoring her singing and song writing students, working in the family business, or indulging her hobbies, including cooking (Allannah is a great amateur patisserie chef), fine arts/painting, walking/climbing, drama/acting, netball and farming.

Allannah grew up and lives on a farm and loves caring for animals and is a natural stock person.

Perhaps surprisingly for such a creative person, Allannah also enjoys woodwork and has created many animal habitat accessories.
